The school received approval for its Application for State Aid for the 2017-18 school year, going back four years, he said. According to Savio, the school file a report with the state of how many students are in the school, how many students the school rescues and the number of Choice students.

“Those counts go up to the state and they run a funding formula based on that data,” Savio added. “However, the funding formula has probably never had a year like this. They have had flat funded distric ts throughout the state for the last seven years,” Savio continued.

West Cape May Elementary School has received Choice Aid that override the state’s per pupil allocation for all students in the school, but Savio said Choice Aid exceeded $1,200 in Stabilization Aid. Savio said the school needed to tighten up data in its system and any student is properly classified in available categories.

School Board President Robert Cwik said unfunded Choice students did present incidental costs to the school, but he said he was told that “this is where we are in the state right now.” Savio said the school would hold a lottery to determine which 41 student would continue because the school is only funded seat for the 2017-18 school year.

Let’s call it a lottery. If you are not a sibling of current Choice students and you are going to be eligible for a sibling seat, a lottery would be held to accept a sibling Choice student. Savio said if there were more than 41 children were unfunded as dental costs from unfunded students.

The resolution states: “The school board turns the resolution to the education committee to consider the state of education. Cwik said if there were more than 41 students in their school then that’s why we’re in the state right now. Savio said the school needed to tighten up data in its system and any student is properly classified in available categories.

School Board President Robert Cwik said unfunded Choice students did present incidental costs to the school, but he said he was told that “this is where we are in the state right now.” Savio said the school would hold a lottery to determine which 41 student would continue because the school is only funded seat for the 2017-18 school year.

Let’s call it a lottery. If you are not a sibling of current Choice students and you are going to be eligible for a sibling seat, a lottery would be held to accept a sibling Choice student. Savio said if there were more than 41 children were unfunded as dental costs from unfunded students.

The resolution states: “The school board turns the resolution to the education committee to consider the state of education. Cwik said if there were more than 41 students in their school then that’s why we’re in the state right now. Savio said the school needed to tighten up data in its system and any student is properly classified in available categories.

School Board President Robert Cwik said unfunded Choice students did present incidental costs to the school, but he said he was told that “this is where we are in the state right now.” Savio said the school would hold a lottery to determine which 41 student would continue because the school is only funded seat for the 2017-18 school year.

Let’s call it a lottery. If you are not a sibling of current Choice students and you are going to be eligible for a sibling seat, a lottery would be held to accept a sibling Choice student. Savio said if there were more than 41 children were unfunded as dental costs from unfunded students.

The resolution states: “The school board turns the resolution to the education committee to consider the state of education. Cwik said if there were more than 41 students in their school then that’s why we’re in the state right now. Savio said the school needed to tighten up data in its system and any student is properly classified in available categories.

School Board President Robert Cwik said unfunded Choice students did present incidental costs to the school, but he said he was told that “this is where we are in the state right now.” Savio said the school would hold a lottery to determine which 41 student would continue because the school is only funded seat for the 2017-18 school year.

Let’s call it a lottery. If you are not a sibling of current Choice students and you are going to be eligible for a sibling seat, a lottery would be held to accept a sibling Choice student. Savio said if there were more than 41 children were unfunded as dental costs from unfunded students.

The resolution states: “The school board turns the resolution to the education committee to consider the state of education. Cwik said if there were more than 41 students in their school then that’s why we’re in the state right now. Savio said the school needed to tighten up data in its system and any student is properly classified in available categories.

School Board President Robert Cwik said unfunded Choice students did present incidental costs to the school, but he said he was told that “this is where we are in the state right now.” Savio said the school would hold a lottery to determine which 41 student would continue because the school is only funded seat for the 2017-18 school year.

Let’s call it a lottery. If you are not a sibling of current Choice students and you are going to be eligible for a sibling seat, a lottery would be held to accept a sibling Choice student. Savio said if there were more than 41 children were unfunded as dental costs from unfunded students.

The resolution states: “The school board turns the resolution to the education committee to consider the state of education. Cwik said if there were more than 41 students in their school then that’s why we’re in the state right now. Savio said the school needed to tighten up data in its system and any student is properly classified in available categories.

School Board President Robert Cwik said unfunded Choice students did present incidental costs to the school, but he said he was told that “this is where we are in the state right now.” Savio said the school would hold a lottery to determine which 41 student would continue because the school is only funded seat for the 2017-18 school year.

Let’s call it a lottery. If you are not a sibling of current Choice students and you are going to be eligible for a sibling seat, a lottery would be held to accept a sibling Choice student. Savio said if there were more than 41 children were unfunded as dental costs from unfunded students.