By CAID CHAMBERLIN

Cape May Star and Wave

Cape May – Those who knew or served with Fred Coldren recognized him as a public servant who always did what was best for the community and its people.

As a devoted public servant, Coldren served in local, state, and federal departments.

Coldren, 70, passed away at his Franklin Street home in Cape May on Wednesday, Jan. 26. Coldren’s colleagues and friends spoke to the Star about Fred Coldren, who served as Cape May’s city manager for 15 years, and how his death will impact the city.

“Fred was very smart; a hard worker. He spent a lot of time. When MacLeod was using computers and wrote the software for the computer, he was a forward thinking hard worker. He spent a lot of time,” MacLeod said.

“A little over two years ago, Cape May City Council unanimously appointed Fred Coldren as Cape May’s Tourism Director, to help the Tourism Utility function as a self-sustaining utility, move to have fallen by the wayside — no meeting schedule was adopted, no meeting times were set. The city council met once a month, and the committee met by appointment, no more than three times a year,” MacLeod said.

“Coldren was a devoted public servant,” MacLeod said. “He was a hard worker. He spent a lot of hours here at City Hall.”

“Coldren was a devoted public servant,” MacLeod said. “He was a hard worker. He spent a lot of hours here at City Hall.”

“Fred was very smart; a hard worker. He spent a lot of time,” MacLeod said.

As the first term for Mayor William商铺和水费账单。他说，“他是个勤劳的人，我们能和他一起工作。”

“Coldren served as Cape May’s city manager for 15 years, and how his death will impact the city.

Coldren, 70, passed away at his Franklin Street home in Cape May on Wednesday, Jan. 26. Coldren’s colleagues and friends spoke to the Star about Fred Coldren, who served as Cape May’s city manager for 15 years, and how his death will impact the city.

“Fred was very smart; a hard worker. He spent a lot of time. When MacLeod was using computers and wrote the software for the computer, he was a forward thinking hard worker. He spent a lot of time,” MacLeod said.

“A little over two years ago, Cape May City Council unanimously appointed Fred Coldren as Cape May’s Tourism Director, to help the Tourism Utility function as a self-sustaining utility, move to have fallen by the wayside — no meeting schedule was adopted, no meeting times were set. The city council met once a month, and the committee met by appointment, no more than three times a year,” MacLeod said.

“Coldren was a devoted public servant,” MacLeod said. “He was a hard worker. He spent a lot of hours here at City Hall.”

“Coldren was a devoted public servant,” MacLeod said. “He was a hard worker. He spent a lot of hours here at City Hall.”

“Fred was very smart; a hard worker. He spent a lot of time,” MacLeod said.

As the first term for Mayor William

By CHRISTOPHER SOUTH

Cape May Star and Wave

Cape May – Cape May’s Advisory Committee on Tourism, which was set up by Councilwoman Deanna Fiocca, voted against the appointment of an alternate member to the committee.

“The purposes of the Advisory Committee on Tourism, as outlined in the Ordinance 244-2011, "are to advise the City Council and Planning Board on tourism within the City and to advise the City Manager on tourism-related issues for accomplishing the objectives of the Department of Tourism, Civic Affairs and Recreation, but with a primary focus on tourism." Without scheduling committee, the committee is essentially defunct and not fulfilling its intended purpose, which was to provide tourism and recreation issues in the city with the help of the Tourism Utility,” said Mayor William Murray.

Please see Forpur,