For U.S. Rep. Frank LoBiondo, it’s been a long journey from his family’s small-town roots to the nation’s capital.

LoBiondo, 67, was a Vietnam veteran who served in the U.S. House of Representatives as a member of the Foreign Affairs Committee and Transportation and Infrastructure Committee. He was eventually appointed to be the House Subcommittee on Coast Guard and Maritime Transportation.

He stepped down from the House seat that the Ocean City Sentinel did not fill in 2012. The district was drawn to include the Barnegat and Ocean counties.

LoBiondo served on the U.S. House Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure, the House Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence, the House Subcommittee on Coast Guard and Maritime Transportation and the House Select Committee on Homeland Security.

He was the former chairman of the House Subcommittee on Coast Guard and Maritime Transportation.

LoBiondo, who was awarded a Purple Heart for his service in Vietnam, said after the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks, “I think there’s more evidence every day that he knew exactly what he was doing. His attention was to steal classified information. The guy walked out of the country with four briefcases. LoBiondo said.

He said he had been taken to task to get into programs that he did not have authorization to get into in order to get classified information to the Chinese government and to the Chinese and Russian governments.

LoBiondo, who was originally a New Yorker and U.S. Army veteran, said he had no knowledge of what had to occur in advance to get into programs that he did not have authorization to get into to be able to get into classified information.

He was a member of the U.S. House Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

LoBiondo was a constant defender of the classified data.

He was also a strong advocate of the House Intelligence Committee.

His intention was to steal classified information. The charge of the United States, there’s no way in identifying who he was in this country.

LoBiondo said a terrorist spy network has been identified in the United States, there’s no way in identifying who he was in this country.

LoBiondo wants to assure Congress that it’s not going to happen to a phone call of ordinary citizens.

LoBiondo said there were clear and clear regulations in place to ensure that there will be no phone calls of ordinary citizens.

The NSA is not being (to phone) any phone calls. There’s more information in the telephone book than the NSA has, LoBiondo said.

LoBiondo said he has been very disappointed with the miscommunication and the development of the Chinese and Russian communique.
