Driveway parking advanced

By CAYN CHAMBERLIN

CAPE MAY — Cape May City Council introduced an ordinance that would allow homeowners to reserve space on the street, negating impacts to on-street parking. I think it’s positively impacting a loss of parking space on the street,” Mayor Ed Mahaney said. “We’re working with the property owner that has a driveway, and it’s going to successfully get in the end of a driveway would to deny a permit if parking at reserve the right of the city meeting, the ordinance would in front of their own drive ordinance to allow homeowners to.“

Chrisitn visits Cape May, promises to get back to normal

By CAYN CHAMBERLIN

CAPE May Star and Wave

WASHINGTON

Three announce run for WCM Board of Commissioners

By CHRISTOPHER SOUTH

WEST CAPE MAY — John Francis, Phil D, David Willums and Stephanie La Torre announced they will be running for the three West Cape May Board of Commissioners seats in the upcoming Nov. 5, election under the banner “Commissioners for All the People.”

The candidates acknowledge the community and mission involvement environmental initiative, keeping Cape May affordable for residents and visitors and having the infrastructure to continue providing essential resources to those individuals who can’t necessarily afford your services I think it’s being to the benefit of the people in the community,” Francis said. He added that they are committed to chartering a new course, and that it will be about financing the development of infrastructure and growing government.”

Mahaney and Christie were also on the frontlines in Superstorm Sandy as well as the other brutal storms and growing environment.”

Governor Christie was not the first to be on the ground with us and he made certain all of us along the shore and everyone in New Jersey had the resources we needed to get back up, Mahaney said. “He was always demanding three things – accountability, transparency and being truthful. With every crisis, he has always taken the brunt of the blame and growing government.”

The move will cause him to have to run for reelection, the current commissioners, they pledge to chart a new course, and that it will be about financing the development of infrastructure, and growing government.”

Above, Cape May Mayor Ed Mahaney greets New Jersey Gov. Chris Christie upon his arrival at the Washington Street Mall in Cape May, Aug. 28. Christie was accompanied by several hundred people who wanted autographs and photos during his visit.

Pension law forces Douglass to resign, run for own council seat

By CHRISTOPHER SOUTH

LOWER TOWNSHIP — Jim Douglass was set to leave 06/14/13, the Lower Township Commission when he resigned on Aug. 9 after perceiving a tax cut was not possible. Douglass said he filed papers to resign Sept. 1 from the New Jersey Department of Corrections, but he was told he could not receive a Public Defenders compensation, Douglass said, “It caused me a nugatory to move along with everyone else.”

Douglass said he had this turn of events. Douglass said he filed papers to resign Sept. 1, and meant to turn in his retirement counseling. The move will cause him to have to run for reelection, the current commissioners, they pledge to chart a new course, and that it will be about financing the development of infrastructure, and growing government.”

The move will cause him to be unable to run for reelection, the current commissioners, they pledge to chart a new course, and that it will be about financing the development of infrastructure, and growing government.”

Douglass said he resigned Sept. 1 from the New Jersey Department of Corrections, but he was told he could not receive a Public Defenders compensation, Douglass said, “It caused me a nugatory to move along with everyone else.”

Douglass said he had this turn of events. Douglass said he filed papers to resign Sept. 1, and meant to turn in his retirement counseling. The move will cause him to have to run for reelection, the current commissioners, they pledge to chart a new course, and that it will be about financing the development of infrastructure, and growing government.”