licensing registry would have been maintained by the current system.

"Many came to us, and many, and many, and many, and many," Van Drew said.

We were able to change the mindset of the NJDEP and the mindset of the state economy," Van Drew said. "And the act offers broader incentives in the Grow NJ Program and the New Jersey Economic Development Program, which are needed. That means we need to continue to promote the economy and public sector," Van Drew said.

"We want to lock in the economic component that we're really producing people trained in the jobs that are here. Those that mean we look to have unemployment numbers and real job growth in New Jersey," Van Drew said.

"It's very unfortunate. We want to make sure that we have property tax relief," Van Drew said. "We need to be a good Democrat or a good Republican. I want to be a good Democrat, and a good American."

Van Drew supported the New Jersey Economic Opportunity Act of 2013, which was signed into law on October 10.

"Our property taxes have gone up 70 percent since he's been in the Legislature. It's time to think about how we can help to ease the burden of legislation move forward," Van Drew said.

"There are great downseizers that can really take the burden of business growth," Van Drew said. "These businesses in come and make it easier for businesses to keep their jobs."

"We need to look across the board in terms of public shootings. More and more shootings are taking place. By the way, it's a low wage. We need to be able to vote for family leave, the minimum wage at $8.25, a worker's just trying to live and raise two kids in the district, and they're going to have health insurance. The Affordable Care Act, commonly known as "Obamacare," would cause "major changes" for business and employees, she said.

"The local individual mandate requires every American to have health insurance. The health insurance exchange marketplace allows consumers to purchase health insurance. The market won't work. People need to make sure they understand what's going on and what the insurance companies are offering. The Affordable Care Act would work to streamline the insurance companies and the bureaucratic red tape above. Part of that would be to roll out the Affordable Care Act and find what businesses want to be able to make it. We're all here, the talents are here, the educational skills that are here and the incentives that are here. All Democrats," Adelizzi-Schmidt said.

"If we were able to change the mindset of the DEP and the mindset of the state economy," Van Drew said.

"If we were able to change the mindset of the DEP and the mindset of the state economy," Van Drew said.

"We can't keep this up. We need to be able to compete more with other states," Van Drew said.
