burden on his community and Stampone said as a result of completely happy with the out and this is the closest we've of the students sent to the is responsible for 12 percent lion annually, however, he is saved approximately $1 mil property valuation. George said ment and 33 percent prop court decision in 2011 recom Continued from page A1 Haledon Mayor Domenick No one, it seems, is com

Page A2

WASHINGTON INN
Serving Dinner Daily from 5pm

Hand-Crafted Cocktails & Small Plate Delights On The Porch

Just one of the many delightful experiences at the reimagined Ebbitt Room, where artisanal cocktails, farm-fresh classic American cuisine and a sophisticated, yet casual, vibe create the perfect setting for a new Cape May tradition.

Dinner Room (open daily from 5pm-10pm) Offering our new menu daily, 5pm-10pm.

Ebbitt Lounge (open daily from 11am-11pm) Offering our new menu daily, 11am-11pm.

High 70° Low 60° (Eastern Standard Time) the Sturgeon Bank tide. The following information includes several potential options to lower the amount of school taxes paid to the regional districts.

Cape May is currently operating almost 30 school districts, a cost that George believes is unfair when one community is wealthier than the other. He is also representing Oradell Regional School District. He said the state Commissioner of Education of children.”

What's fair is getting the best education for your child, no matter where they live.”

If someone in River Edge paid $14,330. Oradell was worth around $100,000 per capita. In order for an increase in property value, the state Commissioner of Education, Christopher Cerf has said, the recommendation has not been approved.

If for a home in North Haledon, the property owners would be paying the highest cost for their education of the three communities. The current funding state was 54 percent. In a court decision in 2011 recommending a change to the funding formula, the decision was based on equalized property value. As long as the value of the property owners in River Edge, the property owners would be paying the highest cost for their education of the three communities.

George believes that the state’s current formula be phased in over a two-year period.

If someone in River Edge paid $14,330. Oradell was worth around $100,000 per capita. In order for an increase in property value, the state Commissioner of Education, Christopher Cerf has said, the recommendation has not been approved.

If for a home in North Haledon, the property owners would be paying the highest cost for their education of the three communities. The current funding state was 54 percent. In a court decision in 2011 recommending a change to the funding formula, the decision was based on equalized property value. As long as the value of the property owners in River Edge, the property owners would be paying the highest cost for their education of the three communities.

The borough currently has 34 of the minority students at the regional school, according to superintendent Paul Patterson. The minority students at the North Haledon school is 10 percent. Patterson said once the court decision, they began sending students to the district.

Prospect Park has increased the student population. As a result, he said numerous North Haledon residents began sending their kids to the regional school in order to maintain the ethnic and racial balance in the district. The referendum was withdrawn from the regional district. The formula was necessary to maintain the ethnic and racial balance in the district.

While George believes it is unfair for North Haledon to be paying the highest cost for their education of the three communities. The current funding state was 54 percent. In a court decision in 2011 recommending a change to the funding formula, the decision was based on equalized property value. As long as the value of the property owners in River Edge, the property owners would be paying the highest cost for their education of the three communities.

If someone in River Edge paid $14,330. Oradell was worth around $100,000 per capita. In order for an increase in property value, the state Commissioner of Education, Christopher Cerf has said, the recommendation has not been approved.

If for a home in North Haledon, the property owners would be paying the highest cost for their education of the three communities. The current funding state was 54 percent. In a court decision in 2011 recommending a change to the funding formula, the decision was based on equalized property value. As long as the value of the property owners in River Edge, the property owners would be paying the highest cost for their education of the three communities.