'The Puffin' has everything you want

CAPE MAY - The Puffin, located at 32 Jackson St., is one of those residences that has just about everything a couple might want in a Cape May.

The Puffin was constructed as a private residence in 1905 and was converted to a bed and breakfast in 1986. In 2004 it was converted into four condo units. Offered for sale now is the main unit, located on the first floor, and being handled by Carol Anderson from the Dallas Agency.

According to Anderson, the first floor unit was the main unit and also the owner's quarters. It is a spacious two-bedroom apartment with a full living room, kitchen, and a private study.

Entering from the side of The Puffin, just off the brick driveway, one enters the great room, which is decorated as appropriate for a Victorian home. To the right, through a pair of French doors, is a former parlor that has been converted into a guest bedroom; again, decorated with care to preserve the Victorian feel of The Puffin.

"The living room would have been where a dining room or a formal parlor would have been located," Anderson said.

Now the room serves as a living area, complete with gas fireplace, adjoining the eat-in kitchen with its hand-painted wooden cabinet doors and modern appliances. Ten-foot ceilings give the room an openness and bright appearance.

There is a powder room off the great room, adjacent to the guest bedroom. The master bedroom is toward the rear of the house and has built-in closet space and a full bath. Going to the back of the house the owners have created a study for the professor, with a bead board ceiling. The maintenance-free
