Unruly youths issue top list, legislators say
Simonsen, McClellan hope to give power back to police

By DAVID NANNAN
CAPE MAY COUNTY, New Jersey—Ocean City’s legislative leaders are looking for a new Lower Township 4th Ward representative to focus on the upcoming in the seven-year tenure of Assemblyman Erik Simonsen, who is expected to move out of state by the end of March in order to focus on a new opportunity. The elected official is expected to return in December 2023 as a branch of the Cape May County Library.

Cape May officials and members of the Center for Community Arts gathered Dec.17 to break through a wall at the Frank_linked_words

By JACK FICHTER
Cape May Star and Wave

By JOHN ROBERTS
Cape May Star and Wave

Cape May Star and Wave

Erma — Lower May Regional High School awarded virtually for a week beginning Jan. 9, with a planned return to a full day on March 1. The Richard M. Teitelman Board of Education announced the virtual closures at a point in the curriculum that the school was spending time on the root word "ponder", which means to think about something.

The Richard M. Teitelman Board of Education noted that the virtual closures are not the result of COVID cases, but rather a planned return to a full day on March 1. The Board of Education announced the virtual closures at a point in the curriculum that the school was spending time on the root word "ponder", which means to think about something.

The Richard M. Teitelman Board of Education noted that the virtual closures are not the result of COVID cases, but rather a planned return to a full day on March 1. The Board of Education announced the virtual closures at a point in the curriculum that the school was spending time on the root word "ponder", which means to think about something.

The Richard M. Teitelman Board of Education noted that the virtual closures are not the result of COVID cases, but rather a planned return to a full day on March 1. The Board of Education announced the virtual closures at a point in the curriculum that the school was spending time on the root word "ponder", which means to think about something.

The Richard M. Teitelman Board of Education noted that the virtual closures are not the result of COVID cases, but rather a planned return to a full day on March 1. The Board of Education announced the virtual closures at a point in the curriculum that the school was spending time on the root word "ponder", which means to think about something.

The Richard M. Teitelman Board of Education noted that the virtual closures are not the result of COVID cases, but rather a planned return to a full day on March 1. The Board of Education announced the virtual closures at a point in the curriculum that the school was spending time on the root word "ponder", which means to think about something.

The Richard M. Teitelman Board of Education noted that the virtual closures are not the result of COVID cases, but rather a planned return to a full day on March 1. The Board of Education announced the virtual closures at a point in the curriculum that the school was spending time on the root word "ponder", which means to think about something.

The Richard M. Teitelman Board of Education noted that the virtual closures are not the result of COVID cases, but rather a planned return to a full day on March 1. The Board of Education announced the virtual closures at a point in the curriculum that the school was spending time on the root word "ponder", which means to think about something.

The Richard M. Teitelman Board of Education noted that the virtual closures are not the result of COVID cases, but rather a planned return to a full day on March 1. The Board of Education announced the virtual closures at a point in the curriculum that the school was spending time on the root word "ponder", which means to think about something.

The Richard M. Teitelman Board of Education noted that the virtual closures are not the result of COVID cases, but rather a planned return to a full day on March 1. The Board of Education announced the virtual closures at a point in the curriculum that the school was spending time on the root word "ponder", which means to think about something.

The Richard M. Teitelman Board of Education noted that the virtual closures are not the result of COVID cases, but rather a planned return to a full day on March 1. The Board of Education announced the virtual closures at a point in the curriculum that the school was spending time on the root word "ponder", which means to think about something.

The Richard M. Teitelman Board of Education noted that the virtual closures are not the result of COVID cases, but rather a planned return to a full day on March 1. The Board of Education announced the virtual closures at a point in the curriculum that the school was spending time on the root word "ponder", which means to think about something.

The Richard M. Teitelman Board of Education noted that the virtual closures are not the result of COVID cases, but rather a planned return to a full day on March 1. The Board of Education announced the virtual closures at a point in the curriculum that the school was spending time on the root word "ponder", which means to think about something.

The Richard M. Teitelman Board of Education noted that the virtual closures are not the result of COVID cases, but rather a planned return to a full day on March 1. The Board of Education announced the virtual closures at a point in the curriculum that the school was spending time on the root word "ponder", which means to think about something.

The Richard M. Teitelman Board of Education noted that the virtual closures are not the result of COVID cases, but rather a planned return to a full day on March 1. The Board of Education announced the virtual closures at a point in the curriculum that the school was spending time on the root word "ponder", which means to think about something.

The Richard M. Teitelman Board of Education noted that the virtual closures are not the result of COVID cases, but rather a planned return to a full day on March 1. The Board of Education announced the virtual closures at a point in the curriculum that the school was spending time on the root word "ponder", which means to think about something.

The Richard M. Teitelman Board of Education noted that the virtual closures are not the result of COVID cases, but rather a planned return to a full day on March 1. The Board of Education announced the virtual closures at a point in the curriculum that the school was spending time on the root word "ponder", which means to think about something.

The Richard M. Teitelman Board of Education noted that the virtual closures are not the result of COVID cases, but rather a planned return to a full day on March 1. The Board of Education announced the virtual closures at a point in the curriculum that the school was spending time on the root word "ponder", which means to think about something.

The Richard M. Teitelman Board of Education noted that the virtual closures are not the result of COVID cases, but rather a planned return to a full day on March 1. The Board of Education announced the virtual closures at a point in the curriculum that the school was spending time on the root word "ponder", which means to think about something.

The Richard M. Teitelman Board of Education noted that the virtual closures are not the result of COVID cases, but rather a planned return to a full day on March 1. The Board of Education announced the virtual closures at a point in the curriculum that the school was spending time on the root word "ponder", which means to think about something.

The Richard M. Teitelman Board of Education noted that the virtual closures are not the result of COVID cases, but rather a planned return to a full day on March 1. The Board of Education announced the virtual closures at a point in the curriculum that the school was spending time on the root word "ponder", which means to think about something.

The Richard M. Teitelman Board of Education noted that the virtual closures are not the result of COVID cases, but rather a planned return to a full day on March 1. The Board of Education announced the virtual closures at a point in the curriculum that the school was spending time on the root word "ponder", which means to think about something.