Coast Guard Community Festival

U.S. Coast Guard vessels were open for tours during the fifth annual Coast Guard Community Festival on May 4 at Train-cering Cape May. Clockwise from bottom right, a recruit company marches at TRACEN; Petty Officer First Class Mackenzie said the state recognized the Frankland Street School as an African American historic site.

"This designation has been critical to our ability to raise nearly $1.2 million," he said. "The balance of that total was contributed by families, residents and businesses in Cape May.

"Use of the school as a library-based community center will provide broader educational, arts and culture opportunities and will allow, if not otherwise possible," he said.

LCMR students declare post-grad commitments

MCJA — With the turn of the calendar to May, collage-bound students must declare their intention to attend their school of choice in the fall.
Parent rallies are often held in schools before a big departure event, but for the LCMR, the six-degrees-of-
was an assembly a group of citizens. He said Heist said having a city
"Use of the school as a library-based community center will provide broader educational, arts and culture opportunities and will allow, if not otherwise possible," he said.

See Study, Page A10