Video interpreters breaking barriers to proper health care

Surfers seize stormy seas

Large waves generated by Hurricane Chris, well offshore from the Jersey coast, attracted surfers last week to Cape May's Cape Beach. A cold front sweeping in today is expected to bring pleasant temperatures with it through the end of the week.

By ERIC AVEDISSIAN
Cape May Star and Wave

---

County files suit against opioid makers

The Cape May Star and Wave

---

Local schools brace for cuts in state funds

Lower Cape May Regional to lose $6 million by 2025

By JACK FICHTER
Cape May Star and Wave

---

Pregnant LT woman killed in car accident

BELLMAWR — Ashley Zane, 27, of Mays Landing, was killed July 15 when the car she was driving struck a tractor-trailer and became wedged under the vehicle.

The accident took place at about 1 p.m. on Route 42 in Lower Cape May Regional Memorial Hospital.

---

By JACK FICHTER
Cape May Star and Wave

---

Interpreters

---

I am from Haiti but I came over when I was very young, so I am not certified in medical terminology, as we all the Interpreters. She said she was trying to make her job satisfying.

"For me, for every person, I have my own parents who do not understand very well, so the patient, I feel like that's my hospital, I would want them to have that help available to them," she said.

Each workday is different, the job is very dynamic, the patients are all different, the problems are all different. The patients are from all over the world, so it isn't something you get bored about. You have to be able to adapt.

---

Interpreters

---

Video interpreters breaking barriers to proper health care

---

Local schools brace for cuts in state funds

Lower Cape May Regional to lose $6 million by 2025

By JACK FICHTER
Cape May Star and Wave

---

Pregnant LT woman killed in car accident

BELLMAWR — Ashley Zane, 27, of Mays Landing, was killed July 15 when the car she was driving struck a tractor-trailer and became wedged under the vehicle.

The accident took place at about 1 p.m. on Route 42 in Lower Cape May Regional Memorial Hospital.

---

By JACK FICHTER
Cape May Star and Wave

---

Interpreters

---

I am from Haiti but I came over when I was very young, so I am not certified in medical terminology, as we all the Interpreters. She said she was trying to make her job satisfying.

"For me, for every person, I have my own parents who do not understand very well, so the patient, I feel like that's my hospital, I would want them to have that help available to them," she said.

Each workday is different, the job is very dynamic, the patients are all different, the problems are all different. The patients are from all over the world, so it isn't something you get bored about. You have to be able to adapt.