Continued from Page A1

The report recommends:

— Educate personnel, parents, and students about the symptoms of COVID-19.
— Train staff on any new cleaning and infection control methods.
— Distribute and follow health and safety guidelines for distancing for schools in September:

"That's a major problem that really I see yet to be addressed in a way that's going to give any comfort to families, particularly those who are successfully for opening schools in September," he said.

Federal and state agencies and Congress need to provide guidance on how to safely reopen schools, he said. Additionally, funding needs to be provided to school districts for cleaning and maintenance, replacing old HVAC systems and providing PPE.

The report recommends that those districts that have a state education and labor council in their state, as well as a task force of stakeholders at the state level, including school boards, administrators, nurses, facility directors and personal and personnel, support staff, transportation, special education counselors, and other stakeholders.

"We've only had five open beachfront related to outdoor dining," he said. "We've not seen much of that," Marino said those were the few businesses he observed with outdoor dining areas, which has caused confusion between city and state over their ability to consistently enforce the rules.

"We've not seen much of that," Marino said those were the few businesses he observed with outdoor dining areas, which has caused confusion between city and state over their ability to consistently enforce the rules.

"We've not seen much of that," Marino said those were the few businesses he observed with outdoor dining areas, which has caused confusion between city and state over their ability to consistently enforce the rules.

"We've not seen much of that," Marino said those were the few businesses he observed with outdoor dining areas, which has caused confusion between city and state over their ability to consistently enforce the rules.

"We've not seen much of that," Marino said those were the few businesses he observed with outdoor dining areas, which has caused confusion between city and state over their ability to consistently enforce the rules.

"We've not seen much of that," Marino said those were the few businesses he observed with outdoor dining areas, which has caused confusion between city and state over their ability to consistently enforce the rules.

"We've not seen much of that," Marino said those were the few businesses he observed with outdoor dining areas, which has caused confusion between city and state over their ability to consistently enforce the rules.

"We've not seen much of that," Marino said those were the few businesses he observed with outdoor dining areas, which has caused confusion between city and state over their ability to consistently enforce the rules.

"We've not seen much of that," Marino said those were the few businesses he observed with outdoor dining areas, which has caused confusion between city and state over their ability to consistently enforce the rules.

"We've not seen much of that," Marino said those were the few businesses he observed with outdoor dining areas, which has caused confusion between city and state over their ability to consistently enforce the rules.

"We've not seen much of that," Marino said those were the few businesses he observed with outdoor dining areas, which has caused confusion between city and state over their ability to consistently enforce the rules.

"We've not seen much of that," Marino said those were the few businesses he observed with outdoor dining areas, which has caused confusion between city and state over their ability to consistently enforce the rules.

"We've not seen much of that," Marino said those were the few businesses he observed with outdoor dining areas, which has caused confusion between city and state over their ability to consistently enforce the rules.

"We've not seen much of that," Marino said those were the few businesses he observed with outdoor dining areas, which has caused confusion between city and state over their ability to consistently enforce the rules.

"We've not seen much of that," Marino said those were the few businesses he observed with outdoor dining areas, which has caused confusion between city and state over their ability to consistently enforce the rules.

"We've not seen much of that," Marino said those were the few businesses he observed with outdoor dining areas, which has caused confusion between city and state over their ability to consistently enforce the rules.

"We've not seen much of that," Marino said those were the few businesses he observed with outdoor dining areas, which has caused confusion between city and state over their ability to consistently enforce the rules.

"We've not seen much of that," Marino said those were the few businesses he observed with outdoor dining areas, which has caused confusion between city and state over their ability to consistently enforce the rules.

"We've not seen much of that," Marino said those were the few businesses he observed with outdoor dining areas, which has caused confusion between city and state over their ability to consistently enforce the rules.

"We've not seen much of that," Marino said those were the few businesses he observed with outdoor dining areas, which has caused confusion between city and state over their ability to consistently enforce the rules.