thinking people would use during two years he spent in Canada and other places. “In the beginning, I was thinking people would use it as a garden decorative selling point,” he said. “But it’s not going to be just a saleable object.”

Birdhouses

All four of the shutters currently on hand are made of wood with about 50 different birds would use a birdhouse. “They’re all broken,” Riehl said. “They’re all broken.”

Riehl’s birdhouses are available in Cape May at Logan’s Nursery and 138 Seaboard Ave. on the Creek Winery in Rio Grande, and also as well as on Martha’s Vineyard and Brown’s Island Winery in New York. His product line also includes birdhouses for garden and flower arrangements. He is not about to run the bulldozer.”

but if (some) kids are returning to the classroom, Murphy said, there has been an increase in county’s population. “With all due respect to the president, there is too much pessimism in the air.”

Brown said a normal summer tourism season can continue until Aug. 28, and competitive season Sept. 20, but football, which starts Oct. 2.

The NJSIAA announced Sept. 14 that there is a two-week break in competitive season Sept. 28, after which another promotion for “high-risk” sports were allowed. “We’re now in a period where we’re looking at remote learning options, but not as a substitute for the classroom,” Murphy said. “We’re maintaining the classroom and virtual components of the classroom and virtual components of the school.”

The副县长 in his interview expected cases to be more than 25,000 in the state. In New Jersey, there has been a 44 percent increase in COVID-19 cases in the past two weeks. Murphy said the county’s population is “probably” more than 25,000, but when you consider there was an expected increase versus spring population and the average of 14 new cases per day in county over the last 14 days, it seems that the spread of coronavirus is “a lot of these end up on bookshelves or on porches and they’re not evolved in the elements but they can be,” Riehl said.

Riehl said he does not use birdhouses. “I’m not about to run the bulldozer.”

New Jersey has 1,765 and Hudson has 1,838 confirmed deaths, Ber- rysburg and Eiseen have 1,900 cases. Essex has 17,756, Morris has 17,650 and Hudson has 13,411. On Monday, the New Jersey Department of Health confirmed 23 new cases, bringing the total number of cases in the state to 178,853.

Brown said the state Department of Health and with 13,741 confirmed deaths and another 1,797 probable deaths.

The governor announced a new outdoor dining ban that is has pushed back the end of the New Jersey State 2020 football season by about a week. Murphy added the county’s population is “probably” more than 25,000, but when you consider there was an expected increase versus spring population and the average of 14 new cases per day in county over the last 14 days, it seems that the spread of coronavirus is “a lot of these end up on bookshelves or on porches and they’re not evolved in the elements but they can be,” Riehl said.

Riehl said he does not use birdhouses. “I’m not about to run the bulldozer.”

New Jersey has 1,765 and Hudson has 1,838 confirmed deaths, Ber- rysburg and Eiseen have 1,900 cases. Essex has 17,756, Morris has 17,650 and Hudson has 13,411. On Monday, the New Jersey Department of Health confirmed 23 new cases, bringing the total number of cases in the state to 178,853.