Burke said the HPC didn’t immediately receive a determination of whether it can regulate his- toric preservation in the streets on the west side of Broadway. Burke confirmed the HPC felt the north side of Fourth Avenue continued historic structures that were also in the historic district. She said the historic district is contiguous with some properties on the east side of Fourth Avenue.

Burke said she wondered if upon reviewing the proposed amended list, the HPC might include some properties on Fourth Avenue that are brand new, so only one house on Fourth Avenue was included but were not included in the survey.

The remainder of Fourth Avenue is different than the historic district or resident structures. Burke said the changes must be made by amending an ordinance for Borough Commission’s next meeting.

Burke said plans for construction in the historic district would need to be presented to the HPC.
