CAPE MAY — The city decided to keep three-day beach tags despite a request from the operating company to change to four-day tags.

City Council introduced an ordinance on Feb. 21 to change the number of beach days that tags run from Friday to Friday. The ordinance was referred to Finance Committee at that time, but during a public hearing Feb. 25, the ordinance was voted down. The ordinance did not make it into the comment. John Cook, general manager of Cape May County Seashore Lines, said he was told about the bad splices of the tracks by the operating company. He believes visitors currently on what was possibly a temporary track will be seen for years.

Cook said the optics of the change was not the only reason for the request. He said a few years ago, the state did not want to hear the tracks going over the bay. They do not want to hear the trains go by anymore. The state is in the process of buying the tracks to Cape May Seashore Lines. At the time, Mike Yeager said. “There’s people that are going to come to Cape May that the gapers and house prices are not a thing to them — they can afford it and they’re happy — but we have to be sensitive to the people that have rotted away.

The state wants to buy the tracks to Cape May Seashore Lines. At the time, Mike Yeager said. “There’s people that are going to come to Cape May that the gapers and house prices are not a thing to them — they can afford it and they’re happy — but we have to be sensitive to the people that have rotted away.

The state wants to buy the tracks to Cape May Seashore Lines. At the time, Mike Yeager said. “There’s people that are going to come to Cape May that the gapers and house prices are not a thing to them — they can afford it and they’re happy — but we have to be sensitive to the people that have rotted away.

The state wants to buy the tracks to Cape May Seashore Lines. At the time, Mike Yeager said. “There’s people that are going to come to Cape May that the gapers and house prices are not a thing to them — they can afford it and they’re happy — but we have to be sensitive to the people that have rotted away.

The state wants to buy the tracks to Cape May Seashore Lines. At the time, Mike Yeager said. “There’s people that are going to come to Cape May that the gapers and house prices are not a thing to them — they can afford it and they’re happy — but we have to be sensitive to the people that have rotted away.

The state wants to buy the tracks to Cape May Seashore Lines. At the time, Mike Yeager said. “There’s people that are going to come to Cape May that the gapers and house prices are not a thing to them — they can afford it and they’re happy — but we have to be sensitive to the people that have rotted away.

The state wants to buy the tracks to Cape May Seashore Lines. At the time, Mike Yeager said. “There’s people that are going to come to Cape May that the gapers and house prices are not a thing to them — they can afford it and they’re happy — but we have to be sensitive to the people that have rotted away.

The state wants to buy the tracks to Cape May Seashore Lines. At the time, Mike Yeager said. “There’s people that are going to come to Cape May that the gapers and house prices are not a thing to them — they can afford it and they’re happy — but we have to be sensitive to the people that have rotted away.

The state wants to buy the tracks to Cape May Seashore Lines. At the time, Mike Yeager said. “There’s people that are going to come to Cape May that the gapers and house prices are not a thing to them — they can afford it and they’re happy — but we have to be sensitive to the people that have rotted away.

The state wants to buy the tracks to Cape May Seashore Lines. At the time, Mike Yeager said. “There’s people that are going to come to Cape May that the gapers and house prices are not a thing to them — they can afford it and they’re happy — but we have to be sensitive to the people that have rotted away.

The state wants to buy the tracks to Cape May Seashore Lines. At the time, Mike Yeager said. “There’s people that are going to come to Cape May that the gapers and house prices are not a thing to them — they can afford it and they’re happy — but we have to be sensitive to the people that have rotted away.

The state wants to buy the tracks to Cape May Seashore Lines. At the time, Mike Yeager said. “There’s people that are going to come to Cape May that the gapers and house prices are not a thing to them — they can afford it and they’re happy — but we have to be sensitive to the people that have rotted away.

The state wants to buy the tracks to Cape May Seashore Lines. At the time, Mike Yeager said. “There’s people that are going to come to Cape May that the gapers and house prices are not a thing to them — they can afford it and they’re happy — but we have to be sensitive to the people that have rotted away.

The state wants to buy the tracks to Cape May Seashore Lines. At the time, Mike Yeager said. “There’s people that are going to come to Cape May that the gapers and house prices are not a thing to them — they can afford it and they’re happy — but we have to be sensitive to the people that have rotted away.

The state wants to buy the tracks to Cape May Seashore Lines. At the time, Mike Yeager said. “There’s people that are going to come to Cape May that the gapers and house prices are not a thing to them — they can afford it and they’re happy — but we have to be sensitive to the people that have rotted away.

The state wants to buy the tracks to Cape May Seashore Lines. At the time, Mike Yeager said. “There’s people that are going to come to Cape May that the gapers and house prices are not a thing to them — they can afford it and they’re happy — but we have to be sensitive to the people that have rotted away.

The state wants to buy the tracks to Cape May Seashore Lines. At the time, Mike Yeager said. “There’s people that are going to come to Cape May that the gapers and house prices are not a thing to them — they can afford it and they’re happy — but we have to be sensitive to the people that have rotted away.

The state wants to buy the tracks to Cape May Seashore Lines. At the time, Mike Yeager said. “There’s people that are going to come to Cape May that the gapers and house prices are not a thing to them — they can afford it and they’re happy — but we have to be sensitive to the people that have rotted away.

The state wants to buy the tracks to Cape May Seashore Lines. At the time, Mike Yeager said. “There’s people that are going to come to Cape May that the gapers and house prices are not a thing to them — they can afford it and they’re happy — but we have to be sensitive to the people that have rotted away.

The state wants to buy the tracks to Cape May Seashore Lines. At the time, Mike Yeager said. “There’s people that are going to come to Cape May that the gapers and house prices are not a thing to them — they can afford it and they’re happy — but we have to be sensitive to the people that have rotted away.

The state wants to buy the tracks to Cape May Seashore Lines. At the time, Mike Yeager said. “There’s people that are going to come to Cape May that the gapers and house prices are not a thing to them — they can afford it and they’re happy — but we have to be sensitive to the people that have rotted away.

The state wants to buy the tracks to Cape May Seashore Lines. At the time, Mike Yeager said. “There’s people that are going to come to Cape May that the gapers and house prices are not a thing to them — they can afford it and they’re happy — but we have to be sensitive to the people that have rotted away.

The state wants to buy the tracks to Cape May Seashore Lines. At the time, Mike Yeager said. “There’s people that are going to come to Cape May that the gapers and house prices are not a thing to them — they can afford it and they’re happy — but we have to be sensitive to the people that have rotted away.

The state wants to buy the tracks to Cape May Seashore Lines. At the time, Mike Yeager said. “There’s people that are going to come to Cape May that the gapers and house prices are not a thing to them — they can afford it and they’re happy — but we have to be sensitive to the people that have rotted away.

The state wants to buy the tracks to Cape May Seashore Lines. At the time, Mike Yeager said. “There’s people that are going to come to Cape May that the gapers and house prices are not a thing to them — they can afford it and they’re happy — but we have to be sensitive to the people that have rotted away.