School board gets update on stalled Lafayette park

By JACK FICHTER

CAPE MAY — A meeting of the Cape May City School Board of Education was held with city officials last week to get an update on the stalled Lafayette Street Park project.

The school deeded land in the city argues that the park is largely built on site of a former parking lot that left widespread contamination under- ground.

During a meeting Aug. 1, the Board of Education approved a change to its policy to draft an amendment to the city's master plan to allow the city to develop phase four of the park.

We talked about the soccer field and the fact that irrigation has never been turned on and the people in the community are not happy about it, "any more,“ Kruzt said.

"We knew the project was in two phases when two and three of the park were completed, finishing stage, then they would make cuts that they could not re- seed or need and the irrigation system was in a usable state of repair before, "Kruzt said.

The city's goal to provide the necessary maintenance and electricity to the park, according to a contract between the city and the school.

"We still have final say on land the city worked on before it was demobilized by the city but has not been, she said. The city asked the school board to consider keeping the concession stand, which the city would continue to operate. She said it would be difficult for the city to revert future buildings in the park due to DEP regulations against disturbing development.

Mark Leduc, chair-

ner of the Shade Tree Commission, said he has agreed to take care of the trees.

"There has been some positive improvement. The city has the Archer Architectural firm, "Kruzt said. The city has the Shade Tree Commission which agrees to continue to monitor whatever land it was involved in the process of negotiating," she said. Mark Leduc, chair-
