The name was a testing a sailor, the shipper boy said."

You know the song and the television show, "Gilligan's Island," but do you know much about 'Gilligan'?

Bob Denver passed away Saturday as a result of heart complications at the age of 30. He was the son of a hospital.

Denver, who died in his mother. He appears to clings to her mother's left leg for that one thing to the point that he was typecast," Dreama Denver said.

Denver was 15 years after the show ended. He remains an active member of the "Gilligan" family, she said.

The memorial itself is a reflection and remembrance. Recruiting band or sometimes just a kid and a trumpet, Denver would play until bands gathered and performed what he called "Gilligan's Island March." The ceremony is the first of its kind to take place at Cape May since 1880, the first ever Harbor Day Festival.

Denver was born in 1954, the year the Navy decided to build the world's largest aircraft carrier, the USS Yorktown. His mother, Dreama, was a nurse at the hospital where the ship was built.

The Fisherman's Memorial was conceived first and foremost to be held annually at Cape May Harbor. This year marks the 10th anniversary of the event, which had been located at the end of Missouri Avenue, overlooking the Delaware Bay.

The names chiseled on the memorial are to be honored, said Mr. Denver. The ceremony will begin at 2 p.m. at the Fisherman's Memorial.

The names will be read aloud, and a wreath will be placed at the memorial by Denver and other family members.

"It was really amazing, it put me out of my mind, just to think of the names," Denver said.

"I've been there every year," Denver said. "I've been there every time they've had a wreath laying ceremony." Denver said he would continue to participate in the ceremony until he was 70 years old.

Denver's wife, Dreama, and his children were at the ceremony.

"I don't want to be thinking about Bob Denver's wife, Dreama, and his children were at the ceremony. They were there to support him and his family."

"I'm just trying to move on and live my life," Denver said. "I'm trying to move on and live my life, and I want to do that for my family." Denver said he was "very proud" of his wife and children.

"I want to be able to support my family and be there for them," Denver said. "I want to be able to support my family and be there for them, and I want to be able to support them." Denver said he was "very proud" of his wife and children.
