CAPE MAY — The City’s Public Safety Building Advisory Committee has advanced the project to the next level, for a new or combined fire/police property, which the committee has recommended for a parking garage on the site. The Planning Board is now tasked with studying the area bordered by Franklin, Ocean, Lafayette and Washington streets to determine whether it meets any of the criteria.

In need of redevelopment?

CAPE MAY — The Franklin Street School could be a reminder of Cape May’s past, while at the same time being a reminder of Cape May’s black community.

During a City Council meeting last week, Robin Conley, a consulting architect for a study to build a public safety building at the Franklin Street School site, stated that the building would need to do war rehabilitation work.

The building is a contribting building to Cape May’s National Historic Landmark and is designated by the state as an African American Historic site.

In 2012, the Center for Community Arts (CCA) received a 25-year lease on the school from the city.

Mayor Thomas Quattrone, in an earlier meeting, stated that the building could be used as a contribting building to Cape May’s National Historic Landmark and is designated by the state as an African American Historic site.

If the city deemed the area in need of redevelopment, it would benefit plans for the construction of a parking garage on the site. The Planning Board is now tasked with studying the area bordered by Franklin, Ocean, Lafayette and Washington streets to determine whether it meets any of the criteria.
