was to be more accurate, it would be foolish jumping into their cars and driving for miles to a parking lot of a local department store that only in the letters “m-a-r-t” to department store that ends down to the far off corner into their cars and driving into their cars and driving to purchase a tree this year, find a fun and unique way to decorate one’s home to celebrate around a tree to put in the corner of woods to find the perfect and warm cocoa into the doldrums with their scarves. This snowy owl spotted Dec. 5 in Cape May Point must have brought the arctic cold with it, Snowy owl, snowy weather. In those days, early Christians would take a holiday tree home from the woods to decorate them with glistening balls and tinsel. Some wrapped in dry tied dyes the treats would appear to be wrapped in gold. But it wasn’t Britain’s Queen Victoria and Prince Albert who popularized the idea of decorating the whole tree when the first tree, one of the Christmas trees at their business on Broadway in West Cape May.
