Cape May—City Council approved two resolutions on Dec. 6, to indemnify the city from liability for any violation of any state or federal law, as well as to indemnify any city officials, employees, and members of the governing body in the litigation involving former police chief Robert Fineberg. They were referred to the Planning Board for action.

By JACK FICHTER
Cape May Star and Wave

Cape May—The city’s Historic Preservation Commission is proposing tougher standards for installation of solar panels, including installation of solar panels, wind turbines. During a Dec. 6 City Council meeting, Consul-todian Roger Furlin offered a year-end report on the commission’s activities. He noted the HPC was formed by the Cape May City’s National Historic Landmark status. He said the HPC receives guidance from the Department of the Interior, the National Park Service, and state Historic Preservation Office.

Carol Emmens/Special to the STAR AND WAVE
Beach Plum Farm serves family-style dinners using fresh vegetables grown right on site. Farm-to-table is flipped to tables at the farm.

LTMUA

renewals

Testa as its CFO

By BETSY WONG
Special to the Star and Wave

VILLAS — The Lower Township Municipal Utilities Authority reapportioned Stephen P. Testa as chief financial officer during a Dec. 7 Board of Commissioners meeting.

“Steve, and his company, have been doing an excellent job and I am very proud to have you serve as our CFO,” LTMUA Chairman Brian O’Connell said.

Phase 1 of the East Villas Water Main Improvement Project is complete. By resolution, all East Villas west of Ocean Drive east of Ocean Drive east of Ocean Drive of main restoration has been accomplished in the project’s first phase. Both Sha-low, Iowa and Hudson avenues will be completed next, according to Executive Director

See LTMUA, Page A4

He’s gonna find out if they’re naughty or nice

Principal Sherry Bish and teachers from the David C. Douglass Memorial School in Villas take a break from their shopping trip in Cape May to pose with Santa Claus during Hospitality Night on Dec. 9 on the Washington Mall.

By BETSY WONG
Special to the Star and Wave

During a year-end report Dec. 6 on its progress, the Beach Plum Farm to table-to-table is flipped to tables at the farm. The first crop that was planted was asparagus. Beach Plum Beach Plum Farm serves family-style dinners using fresh vegetables grown right on site. Farm-to-table is flipped to tables at the farm.

John Cooke/Special to the STAR AND WAVE

By CAROL EMMENS
Cape May Star and Wave

WEST CAPE MAY — “Our business is helping people make memories.” The Beach Plum Farm, which spans and noted that they have plowed the farm, so I brought those experiences to the farm. The farm-to-table is flipped to tables at the farm. The organic food is grown or raised at the farm, which was purchased in 2007. As a young man, Bashaw worked on his grandfather’s farm and learned about the importance of agriculture. He said the farm-to-table is flipped to tables at the farm. The organic food is grown or raised at the farm, which was purchased in 2007. As a young man, Bashaw worked Bashaw is a co-founder of Beach Plum and Cape Resorts, which owns and operates Beach Plum and other properties, as well as Beach Plum Beach.

“We are hosts 24/7 and in our travels, Bashaw said as he described the goal of the farm, which was purchased in 2007. As a young man, Bashaw worked on the farm.

When he hit the ground running in 2007, as a young man, Bashaw worked on the farm.

John Cooke/Special to the STAR AND WAVE

By CAROL EMMENS
Cape May Star and Wave

Beach Plum Farm serves family-style dinners using fresh vegetables grown right on site. Farm-to-table is flipped to tables at the farm.

The first crop that was planted was asparagus. Beach Plum Beach Plum Farm serves family-style dinners using fresh vegetables grown right on site. Farm-to-table is flipped to tables at the farm. The organic food is grown or raised at the farm, which was purchased in 2007. As a young man, Bashaw worked on his grandfather’s farm and learned about the importance of agriculture. He said the farm-to-table is flipped to tables at the farm. The organic food is grown or raised at the farm, which was purchased in 2007. As a young man, Bashaw worked on

Beach Plum

Farm serves family-style dinners using fresh veget-etables grown right on site. Farm-to-table is flipped to tables at the farm.

Cape May—City Council approved two resolutions on Dec. 6, to indemnify the city from liability for any violation of any state or federal law, as well as to indemnify any city officials, employees, and members of the governing body in the litigation involving former police chief Robert Fineberg. They were referred to the Planning Board for action.

By JACK FICHTER
Cape May Star and Wave

Cape May—The city’s Historic Preservation Commission is proposing tougher standards for installation of solar panels, including installation of solar panels, wind turbines. During a Dec. 6 City Council meeting, Consul-
todian Roger Furlin offered a year-end report on the commission’s activities. He noted the HPC was formed by the Cape May City’s National Historic Landmark status. He said the HPC receives guidance from the Department of the Interior, the National Park Service, and state Historic Preservation Office.

In 2003, the HPC pre-

Cape May—City Council approved two resolutions on Dec. 6, to indemnify the city from liability for any violation of any state or federal law, as well as to indemnify any city officials, employees, and members of the governing body in the litigation involving former police chief Robert Fineberg. They were referred to the Planning Board for action.

By JACK FICHTER
Cape May Star and Wave

Cape May—The city’s Historic Preservation Commission is proposing tougher standards for installation of solar panels, including installation of solar panels, wind turbines. During a Dec. 6 City Council meeting, Consul-
todian Roger Furlin offered a year-end report on the commission’s activities. He noted the HPC was formed by the Cape May City’s National Historic Landmark status. He said the HPC receives guidance from the Department of the Interior, the National Park Service, and state Historic Preservation Office.

In 2003, the HPC pre-

Cape May—City Council approved two resolutions on Dec. 6, to indemnify the city from liability for any violation of any state or federal law, as well as to indemnify any city officials, employees, and members of the governing body in the litigation involving former police chief Robert Fineberg. They were referred to the Planning Board for action.

By JACK FICHTER
Cape May Star and Wave

Cape May—The city’s Historic Preservation Commission is proposing tougher standards for installation of solar panels, including installation of solar panels, wind turbines. During a Dec. 6 City Council meeting, Consul-
todian Roger Furlin offered a year-end report on the commission’s activities. He noted the HPC was formed by the Cape May City’s National Historic Landmark status. He said the HPC receives guidance from the Department of the Interior, the National Park Service, and state Historic Preservation Office.

In 2003, the HPC pre-

Cape May—City Council approved two resolutions on Dec. 6, to indemnify the city from liability for any violation of any state or federal law, as well as to indemnify any city officials, employees, and members of the governing body in the litigation involving former police chief Robert Fineberg. They were referred to the Planning Board for action.

By JACK FICHTER
Cape May Star and Wave

Cape May—The city’s Historic Preservation Commission is proposing tougher standards for installation of solar panels, including installation of solar panels, wind turbines. During a Dec. 6 City Council meeting, Consul-
todian Roger Furlin offered a year-end report on the commission’s activities. He noted the HPC was formed by the Cape May City’s National Historic Landmark status. He said the HPC receives guidance from the Department of the Interior, the National Park Service, and state Historic Preservation Office.

In 2003, the HPC pre-

Cape May—City Council approved two resolutions on Dec. 6, to indemnify the city from liability for any violation of any state or federal law, as well as to indemnify any city officials, employees, and members of the governing body in the litigation involving former police chief Robert Fineberg. They were referred to the Planning Board for action.

By JACK FICHTER
Cape May Star and Wave

Cape May—The city’s Historic Preservation Commission is proposing tougher standards for installation of solar panels, including installation of solar panels, wind turbines. During a Dec. 6 City Council meeting, Consul-
todian Roger Furlin offered a year-end report on the commission’s activities. He noted the HPC was formed by the Cape May City’s National Historic Landmark status. He said the HPC receives guidance from the Department of the Interior, the National Park Service, and state Historic Preservation Office.

In 2003, the HPC pre-

Cape May—City Council approved two resolutions on Dec. 6, to indemnify the city from liability for any violation of any state or federal law, as well as to indemnify any city officials, employees, and members of the governing body in the litigation involving former police chief Robert Fineberg. They were referred to the Planning Board for action.

By JACK FICHTER
Cape May Star and Wave

Cape May—The city’s Historic Preservation Commission is proposing tougher standards for installation of solar panels, including installation of solar panels, wind turbines. During a Dec. 6 City Council meeting, Consul-
todian Roger Furlin offered a year-end report on the commission’s activities. He noted the HPC was formed by the Cape May City’s National Historic Landmark status. He said the HPC receives guidance from the Department of the Interior, the National Park Service, and state Historic Preservation Office.

In 2003, the HPC pre-

Cape May—City Council approved two resolutions on Dec. 6, to indemnify the city from liability for any violation of any state or federal law, as well as to indemnify any city officials, employees, and members of the governing body in the litigation involving former police chief Robert Fineberg. They were referred to the Planning Board for action.

By JACK FICHTER
Cape May Star and Wave

Cape May—The city’s Historic Preservation Commission is proposing tougher standards for installation of solar panels, including installation of solar panels, wind turbines. During a Dec. 6 City Council meeting, Consul-
todian Roger Furlin offered a year-end report on the commission’s activities. He noted the HPC was formed by the Cape May City’s National Historic Landmark status. He said the HPC receives guidance from the Department of the Interior, the National Park Service, and state Historic Preservation Office.

In 2003, the HPC pre-

Cape May—City Council approved two resolutions on Dec. 6, to indemnify the city from liability for any violation of any state or federal law, as well as to indemnify any city officials, employees, and members of the governing body in the litigation involving former police chief Robert Fineberg. They were referred to the Planning Board for action.

By JACK FICHTER
Cape May Star and Wave

Cape May—The city’s Historic Preservation Commission is proposing tougher standards for installation of solar panels, including installation of solar panels, wind turbines. During a Dec. 6 City Council meeting, Consul-
todian Roger Furlin offered a year-end report on the commission’s activities. He noted the HPC was formed by the Cape May City’s National Historic Landmark status. He said the HPC receives guidance from the Department of the Interior, the National Park Service, and state Historic Preservation Office.

In 2003, the HPC pre-

Cape May—City Council approved two resolutions on Dec. 6, to indemnify the city from liability for any violation of any state or federal law, as well as to indemnify any city officials, employees, and members of the governing body in the litigation involving former police chief Robert Fineberg. They were referred to the Planning Board for action.

By JACK FICHTER
Cape May Star and Wave

Cape May—The city’s Historic Preservation Commission is proposing tougher standards for installation of solar panels, including installation of solar panels, wind turbines. During a Dec. 6 City Council meeting, Consul-
todian Roger Furlin offered a year-end report on the commission’s activities. He noted the HPC was formed by the Cape May City’s National Historic Landmark status. He said the HPC receives guidance from the Department of the Interior, the National Park Service, and state Historic Preservation Office.