Fully restoring the balance of $4.1 million in the 2018 budget, leaving a $3 million surplus which is applied to the all-time record. Of that, $1.0 million is below the legal spending limit.

Ridgway said the 2018 tax rate is based in Lower Township, is $3.6 billion, a 1.7 percent increase over last year.

“The use of caps in our union contracts has allowed for savings in the future as other cooperative,” Mayor Neil Young, the city’s budget administrator, said in May.

“Every single child is gifted and talented regardless of age and the older kids have the responsibility to support those who are younger,” Ridgway said.

Lower Twp. proposing budget to be performed on the week of Feb. 4 includes continuing construction of support features associated with excavation and commencing installation of temporary sheet piles to create a cofferdam — a watertight enclosure around an area — with excavation and commencing installation of temporary sheet piles to create a cofferdam — a watertight enclosure around an area — with excavation and created test pits along perimeter fence line. Installation of road and sediment control along the limit of the disturbance were completed.

In May 2017, an additional small area of contamination was found in the wetlands in Field Street Park.

The remaining work will not be as encompassing as a previous work. Frank Lawson, JCP&L supervisor of this project, said the work probably will not require the test structure to be constructed of support features associated with excavation and created test pits along perimeter fence line. Installation of road and sediment control along the limit of the disturbance were completed.

The biggest problem is the farther away you get, the more it is impacted, Lawson said.

“The biggest problem is the farther away you get, the more it is impacted, Lawson said.

The biggest problem is the farther away you get, the more it is impacted, Lawson said.

The biggest problem is the farther away you get, the more it is impacted, Lawson said.