Lunch and Learn series draws crowd of active learners

By J. M. HEINLY

CAPE MAY — The Lunch and Learn series, hosted by the Victorian Views column of the Cape May Star and Wave, was a hit with our first presentation. Our next program in the series, scheduled for the end of March, will fea- ture Q&A on the state of New Jersey. Those interested in attending this program are encouraged to register as soon as possible.

The Lunch and Learn series was created to offer a unique platform for active learners to gather and share knowledge. The series aims to provide a space where individuals can learn from experts and each other, fostering a sense of community and intellectual growth. The programs cover a wide range of topics, from history and politics to the arts and sciences, and are designed to engage adults of all ages and backgrounds.

The success of the series is evident in the turnout for our first program. There were over 40 attendees, and the session was well-received. We received positive feedback from our participants, who enjoyed the interactive nature of the presentation and appreciated the opportunity to engage with the speaker and ask questions.

The series is open to everyone interested in learning and sharing knowledge. If you are passionate about a particular topic or have expertise in a field, we encourage you to consider joining our Lunch and Learn series as a presenter. Our next program is scheduled for the end of March, and we are looking for individuals to share their knowledge and insights with our community.

In the meantime, we invite you to participate in our future programs. We hope to continue to attract a diverse audience and provide a space for active learning and engagement. We look forward to seeing you at our next event.
