Obama ran that our voter to Cape May County Clerk swell in numbers, according to Fulginiti. The Cape May County Clerk’s Office issued 8,291 ballots this election, more than any other year, according to Fulginiti. The highest mail-in ballot in Cape May was 45.8 per cent. “The ballots cast in this election were 14,000 more than in 2014. The ballots cast in this election as far, and there’s going to be a few more. I’m sure. In 2016 we had 14,314. In 2013 we had 10,900,” Fulginiti said. Previous voters had the option of requesting a ballot for a single election, all elections in a calendar year or every general year. It’s changed so that there’s now just one application for a mail-in ballot, Fulginiti said.

The new law standardized that voters could request a mail-in ballot for a general election be sent one for the 2019 general election. Fulginiti said this increased the number of mail-in ballots issued.

“Most increased in this election was a change in the law which grants the ability in other states for them and we could just put out a single election or be every general year. It’s changed so that there’s now just one application for a mail-in ballot,” Fulginiti said.

In August, Gov. Phil Murphy signed a change in the mail-in ballot law, giving voters an option to apply for a mail-in ballot for a single election or receive a mail-in ballot for all future elections.

The number of mail-in ballots increased 68 per cent, Fulginiti said.

“This seemed like it would never happen in 2008 when Barack Obama ran that our voter to Cape May County Clerk swell in numbers, according to Fulginiti. The Cape May County Clerk’s Office issued 8,291 ballots this election, more than any other year, according to Fulginiti. The highest mail-in ballot in Cape May was 45.8 per cent. “The ballots cast in this election were 14,000 more than in 2014. The ballots cast in this election as far, and there’s going to be a few more. I’m sure. In 2016 we had 14,314. In 2013 we had 10,900,” Fulginiti said. Previous voters had the option of requesting a ballot for a single election, all elections in a calendar year or every general year. It’s changed so that there’s now just one application for a mail-in ballot, Fulginiti said.

The new law standardized that voters could request a mail-in ballot for a general election be sent one for the 2019 general election. Fulginiti said this increased the number of mail-in ballots issued.

“Most increased in this election was a change in the law which grants the ability in other states for them and we could just put out a single election or be every general year. It’s changed so that there’s now just one application for a mail-in ballot,” Fulginiti said.

In August, Gov. Phil Murphy signed a change in the mail-in ballot law, giving voters an option to apply for a mail-in ballot for a single election or receive a mail-in ballot for all future elections.

The number of mail-in ballots increased 68 per cent, Fulginiti said.

“This seemed like it would never happen in 2008 when Barack Obama ran that our voter to Cape May County Clerk swell in numbers, according to Fulginiti. The Cape May County Clerk’s Office issued 8,291 ballots this election, more than any other year, according to Fulginiti. The highest mail-in ballot in Cape May was 45.8 per cent. “The ballots cast in this election were 14,000 more than in 2014. The ballots cast in this election as far, and there’s going to be a few more. I’m sure. In 2016 we had 14,314. In 2013 we had 10,900,” Fulginiti said. Previous voters had the option of requesting a ballot for a single election, all elections in a calendar year or every general year. It’s changed so that there’s now just one application for a mail-in ballot, Fulginiti said.

The new law standardized that voters could request a mail-in ballot for a general election be sent one for the 2019 general election. Fulginiti said this increased the number of mail-in ballots issued.

“Most increased in this election was a change in the law which grants the ability in other states for them and we could just put out a single election or be every general year. It’s changed so that there’s now just one application for a mail-in ballot,” Fulginiti said.

In August, Gov. Phil Murphy signed a change in the mail-in ballot law, giving voters an option to apply for a mail-in ballot for a single election or receive a mail-in ballot for all future elections.

The number of mail-in ballots increased 68 per cent, Fulginiti said.