The Cape May Star and Wave has been watching over the shores at the southern most tip of New Jersey since 1851. It is where locals and visitors have traveled for their vacations for many years. The Star and Wave is a weekly newspaper for local people, and a great resource for information who want to stay abreast on what is happening in Cape May, West Cape May, Cape May Point, North Cape May, the Villas, Town Bank, Fishing Creek, Kites and the rest of Lower Township, along with other local communities.

Registering a protest against the proposed use of the Cape May County Public Library will be held this coming Friday at 9 a.m. in Ocean City, New Jersey. The community is asked to attend the protest and to show their support for the library and its current use.

The Cape May County Public Library is located at 501 Cape May Avenue, Ocean City, New Jersey. The library offers a wide range of resources, including books, magazines, and newspapers. The library also provides access to various online resources, such as databases and e-books.

In addition to books and other printed materials, the library offers a variety of educational programs and events, such as workshops, lectures, and film screenings. The library also serves as a community center, hosting a range of events, including musical performances, art exhibits, and cultural programs.

The library is open every day of the week, with extended hours on Wednesdays and Sundays. It is located on the first floor of the Ocean City Public Library Building, which is also home to the Ocean City Historical Society. The building was designed by the architect Henry B. Barnard and completed in 1930.

The library is a vital resource for the local community, providing access to knowledge and information. It is a place where people can learn, grow, and connect with others. The library is supported by the community, through donations and volunteer efforts. It is important to support the library and ensure that it continues to provide valuable resources for the community.

The library is also a pillar of the community, offering opportunities for cultural enrichment and social engagement. It is a place where people can come together to share their interests and passions, to learn from each other, and to celebrate the diversity of the community.

The Cape May County Public Library is an important institution that enriches the lives of local residents and visitors alike. It is a testament to the value of education and the importance of libraries in modern society.

The Cape May Star and Wave is proud to support the Cape May County Public Library and to encourage the community to come together in support of this vital resource.
